Though we were lovers in secrecy, we had daily lives not always connecting. When they did, it was during an everyday common occurrence. As old friends who had been that and just that since childhood, we really had nothing in common, but we still had our dreams and the past to linger on. When years separated us, childhood memories brought us together. Somehow, through the 4 years we shared, these memories managed to keep us together.

Today, now that I look back on the past, I'm glad my part in it was something I had enjoyed. Though school was not always what I wanted it to be, it was something to look forward to. Had I known then, that in years to come I would be thinking back wondering what I missed when I had decided to skip Mrs. Englewood's class! Though she wasn't always a snobby old lady, she had her days just like the rest of us. But to watch that old lady run after a student who got out of line, you would have thought she was born in gymshoes. At times, my life became a daily routine, then as the years passed and time grew, I became more and more afraid of my time running out.

Three years of school had already gone by, and as a Senior I felt I had achieved what my teachers thought impossible. In my first year I was considered a menace to my own kind, and an outrageous nut by the teachers' standards, (even though I felt and knew myself to be superior to the whole human race.) In my second year, my pride had been hurt by a girl named Eloise, to whom I had given my heart and loveable self. She dropped me like a fly when I had approached her on several occasions. It was then I knew not to trust such a feeble thing as a girl with your heart. Though a little weakened in my second year from a ladden heart, I managed to see my third year with a wise, if not devious mind. Even though my wickedness had increased by a fraction of an inch, my values to be "an intellectual" the teachers would never forget, remained still in my heart.

With such strong hopes and influences behind me, I had an exciting, if not fulfilling year ahead. In my 4th and final year, all had been accounted for . . . My grades ranked far above that of an average upper-classman. Though the teachers' opinions of me had not changed, I was the head topic of their discussions. Amongst others, I was considered the brat who used his brain. Often I'd burn a few of them just to give some spirit to the class.

When it came to debates, my opinions were never questioned because "I!", was seldom wrong. Though I was considered a pest, I knew deep in my heart, that I had won their greatest admiration. I was just one of the students who had fought a battle and came out on top.

Now looking back on what I consider to be a very bright beginning, I look at my life now and wonder, had I not been the person I was, would my life be different now? Would my morals be different? Had I not been the pest I was, could I have achieved as high a standard of myself as well as of life?

Dave Afelder: In Memoriam, August, 1977

with a snort of coke & a lit joint, dangling from his lips, looking like a vampire just out of his coffin, old rascal death plays an effectual dirge no one wants to listen to yet can't help feeling upon the musical keys of dave afelder's piano soul

& the kid feels no rain of fingers upon his keys.
old rascal death might have him away from us but the kid has himself away from pain.

another wonder gone.
like cycles, visitations, & settings done.
where is the necessary brandy without chaser?
i want to scrape jagged walls of exposed broken glass with bare fingers to feel them bleed in song: death like cocaine comes, death like cocaine numbs.

mentally unfit
to stand trial
for responsibility of actions like a berkowitz, death is consistently un imaginative & sadistic. the bizarre demise titillates him:

lisa slusser,
susan clarke,
dave afelder, dave afelder-HEY DAVE!
cameraman-turned-producer, the poets think you're trying to hustle them.
they say o.k. esta bien, showcase them but taking the money is like taking the credit for the work itself. where does the creator begin and the producer end? HEY DAVE! when you said that in our differences which really aren't differences but learned habits, we are all basically the same, i liked the angle of your camera lens but to drown
in some rapids off Alaska is not as plain as the explanation of a camera angle

& the kid does not feel the rain of fingers upon his keys: he feels nothing, now.
far away from us but afelder has himself far away from pain

RE: SPECIAL RECOGNITION

Each year, as we select the cheerleading squad, I ask myself how many of these girls really have what it takes to be a "CHEERLEADER".

School spirit, loyalty, dedication, and pride are but a few of the qualities a cheerleader must possess. But most important—all of these must be coupled with an unselfish, hard-working, dependable and persevering attitude.

It is for these qualities that I would like special recognition to go to the following girls, your cheerleaders:

Lisa Bonilla
Luz Cardona
Daffy Colon
Carmen Garcia
Chris Hare
Tamara Johnson
Maria Rivera

I Want to Share My Love

To Robert

Every time I see you
I feel my heart
Grow.
Every time I see you
I know that I'm in Love

I want to share my love with you
I hope you don't Refuse
You know that I Love you too much
I feel your tender
touch

Babe come and let me know
with whom you share your love

Babe come and
let me know
that you still are alone

I want to share my Love with you
I hope you don't Refuse

Babe I'm telling
the truth
I'm in love
with you

I'm In Love
With You.

Poem by Luis A. Rodriguez

*I wish you good luck in the future.
and I wish you remember me as I remember you
I like you alot as a friend & more for something

Memories of Roberto Clemente

Roberto Clemente—Photo composition by Gregory Maldonado.

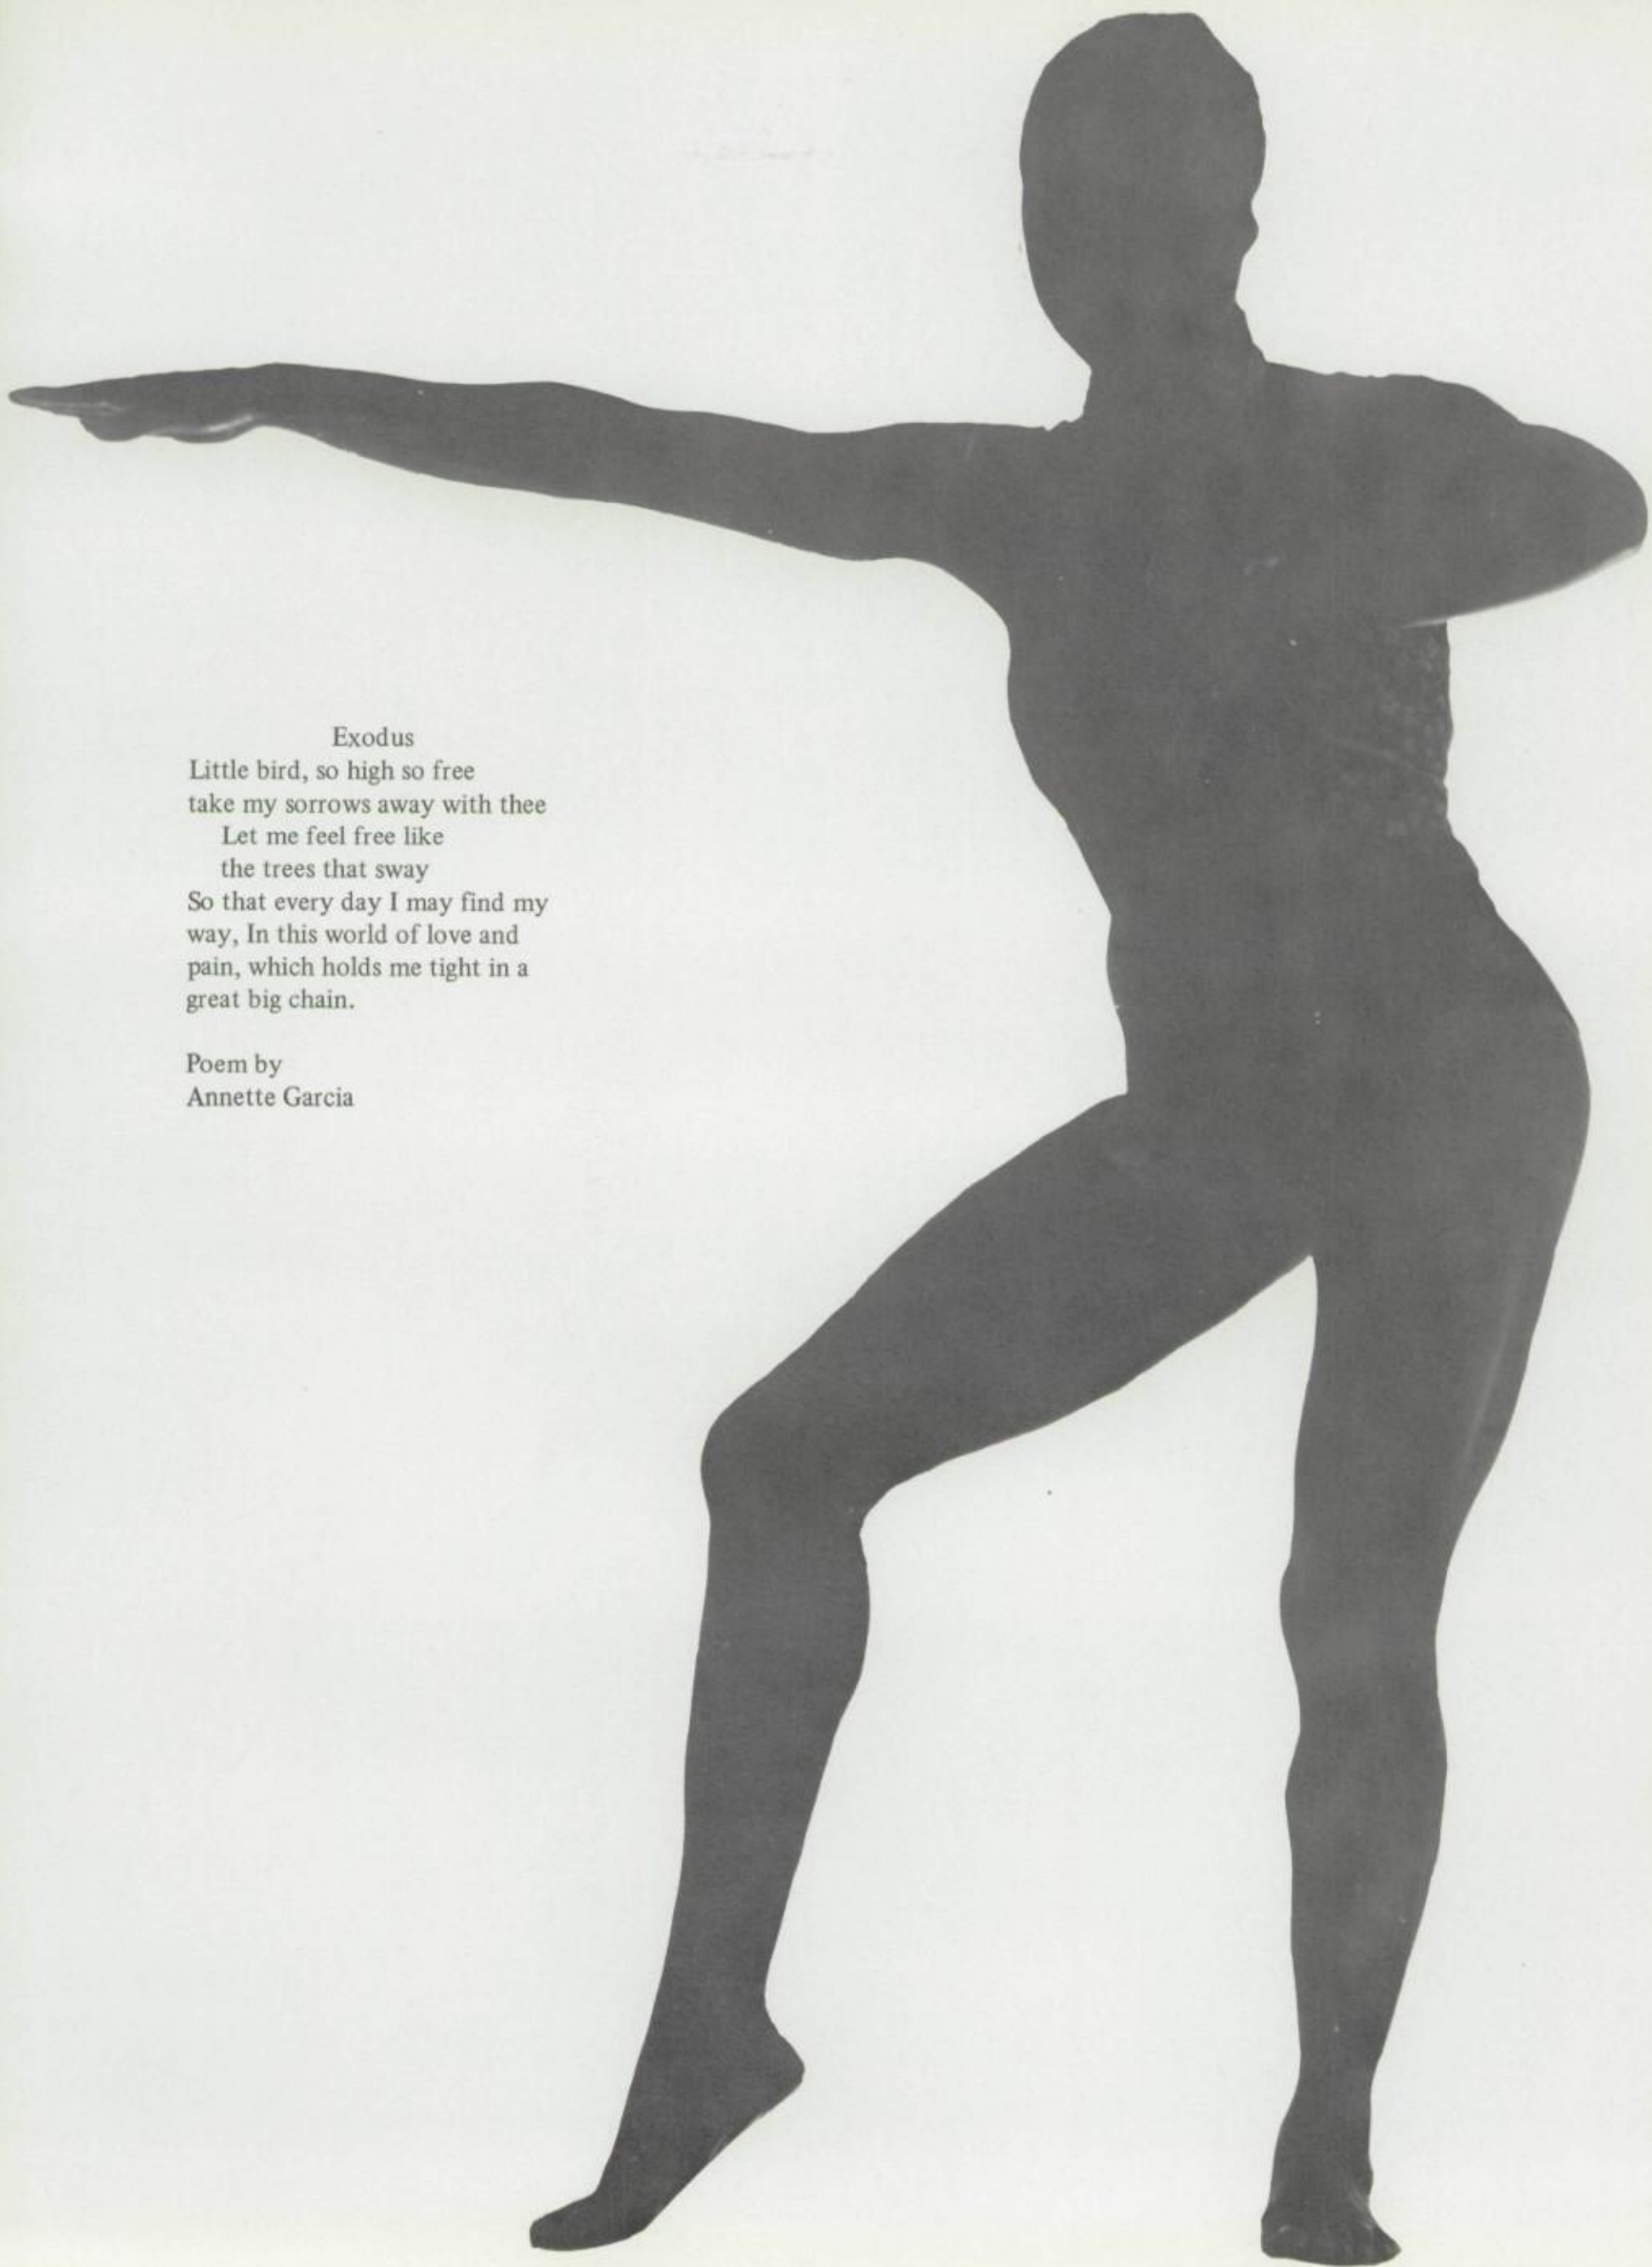

Exodus

Little bird, so high so free take my sorrows away with thee

Let me feel free like the trees that sway

So that every day I may find my way, In this world of love and pain, which holds me tight in a great big chain.

Perhaps your pen was not working well the day you had your photo taken or perhaps our eyes were not

Radio-T. V.

This was a busy productive year for Clemente's Film/Radio-TV Section. In a 10-month period, 15 efforts, written, produced and or performed by our students have been aired on commercial, public and network television. Two productions were singled out for major recognition: "Some Day Will all be Free" won both a Silver Plaque and the coveted Illinois Award at the Chicago International Film Festival. The 25-minute sound and color movie was also screened twice on WBBM-TV/Channel 2. "Why Tower Fell," a videotape drama about narcotics addiction, aired in Channel 11/WTTW and won a Gold Plaque at the Chicago International Film Festival.

We were also fortunate in that student creativity lead to important professional opportunities for our graduates: Martha Hidalgo at WGN-Radio TV; Aldo Gardia at the audio-visual production dept, of Standard Oil of Indiana.

Bilingual Communications Arts Committee

WE COMMUNICATE

The Bilingual Communication Arts Committee was established in the summer of 1974 to design a print/video communications curriculum in both English and Spanish for the student body and staff of Roberto Clemente High School. The committee oversees the production of a bilingual calendar that received a First place in the Chicago Public School Industrial Arts Exhibition last spring and the highly acclaimed bilingual periodical we call "Mundo Joven". The committee is also instrumental in designing and printing a variety of other graphics related to school functions and activities that enrich the school scene.

Co-partner in the communication program is our TV/Film Section. Since the school's opening in September of 1974 a number of impressive films have been produced for such diverse organizations as the National Educational Television Network, the Interlake corporation and the CETA program operated by the Chicago Board of Education. We take great pride in a recent film venture, "Some Day We'll All Be Free", which won a silver plaque and the coveted Illinois Award at the recent Chicago International Film Festival. This film was selected from among 137 entrants from both high school and colleges in the Student Film category.

Aside from their film making activities, teams of students have staged and produced a number of class presentation throughout the school.

In the course of all their efforts the students have learned a great deal and developed important marktable skills. We proud of all of them.

At Clemente, communications is spelled with a capital "C". It's also lots of fun!
